Angela welcomed Elizabeth Nowlan and Sue Wilmot to the meeting to discuss the proposed changes to the report cards.

Elizabeth Nowlan presented a PowerPoint discussing the proposed new report cards. She welcomed any questions or comments during the presentation or offered the members to email her their questions or comments.

January-June 2013- members from the province, district and NBTA met to discuss the report cards. They discussed the purpose of the report cards. They had focus groups with more than 80 educators across the province taking part. Educators also did an online survey.

Proposed changes were to have four reporting periods instead of three. Two would be progress reports and two would be achievement reporting. Would be curriculum based reporting. There would be specific performance indicators rather than nominal grades or letter grades. November and March would be the progress reports while January and June would be achievement reports. Handouts were looked at by the members. The handouts were an information sheet which would be printed on the report card envelope and the other handout had examples of the new progress reports and achievement reports.
