

Nutrition Success Story

First Catering Experience

Tamara Richard and young chefs

Brad Sturgeon, Principal and young chefs

Leo Hayes Success Story

“That was deeeelicious!”

---

Leo Hayes is a High School in Fredericton. It has a population of over 1600 students. On Tuesday, February 13th, a group was on site working on Learning Through Personalization. For lunch, the catering was done on site by students through the Culinary Arts class. Eight students were on site to serve lunch for the group. When one of the participants asked how many catering opportunities they have had, they responded: “This is our first one!”. One participant was quoted saying: “That was deeeelicious!”. Lunch consisted of salad, lasagna and gluten free options were also served. Tamara Richard, the Culinary Arts teacher, and Brad Sturgeon, principal, were very proud of their school and their chefs! The students successfully prepared a wonderful meal as their first catering engagement, and we could not be more proud. We want to congratulate Leo Hayes on a job well done and celebrate their nutrition success story.

---