TIGER was a great hit for everyone

TIGER, a professional theatre group from Plymouth State University in New Hampshire, dazzled the students from St. Martins and Loch Lomond Schools on Friday, May 10.

Their show that talked about anti-bully strategies gave a solid message across all grade levels.

The school gym was packed for the performance as we invited 200 students from Loch Lomond School to join us for the day.

Thank you to Lynn Crowther and her team for bringing TIGER to St. Martins School and the community.

Jim Huttges Clean-up Day

All the students participated in the 1st annual Jim Huttges Clean-up day. Each year the school takes some time to collect garbage from the school and village area but this year we decided to dedicate the day to the former mayor, Jim Huttges. Student packed bags of garbage from around the school, along Main Street, at the Four Season Complex and Mosher Hill all to make the area cleaner; something that was very important to Jim and his council.

Community Garden Poster Contest

Over the past couple of months the students have planted and been tending to their tomato plants which will eventually be planted in the community garden. These tomatoes, along with the marigolds, will be planted in June.

The students were asked to design a picture that will be displayed at the community garden. Kaitlyn was the overall winner. She is seen in the picture with Kathi Dunphy.

This summer look for the sign and the garden down at the Country Inn off Main Street. You too can get involved in the garden project by contacting Kathi Dunphy at 833-6240. Congrats to Kaitlyn.

Eric Walters, Author!

Eric Walters, an award winning Canadian Author, visited the school and talked about his books and how he gets his ideas for writing. His presentation to the students was very energetic and he even made Brandon his helper for the show. Eric travels the world getting his ideas and has talked to thousands of students across the country. He was at our school as part of Canadian Children's Book Week Celebrations.
