

WOULD KIDS
REALLY STEAL
FROM A TEACHER?

By: Abbygail.C

"Four blurts, great job class I'll go get the treats, just sit quietly," mentioned Mrs. Applebottom.

"WHAT TIME IS IT?" Carla blurted.

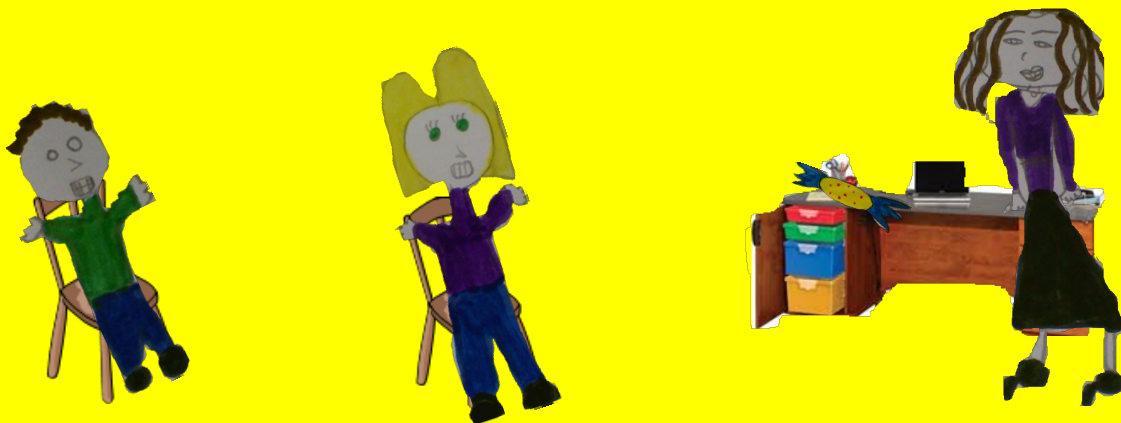

"That is it, no treat for the class today," Mrs. Applebottom announced.

"That is not fair" Tanner mumbled.

"WHAT!?" the class yelled.

"That is enough!" Mrs. Applebottom demeaned.

Tanner thought to himself, I am not going to wait another whole day for the treat just because Carla blurted out making us get one too many blurts. I guess I am going to have to steal it!

012345678910

When the bell rang, Tanner pretended to leave. As soon as Mrs. Applebottom went down to the staff room, Tanner snuck into the classroom and got the treat. But that was not all Tanner was in for. Mrs. Applebottom's heels came walking toward the classroom!

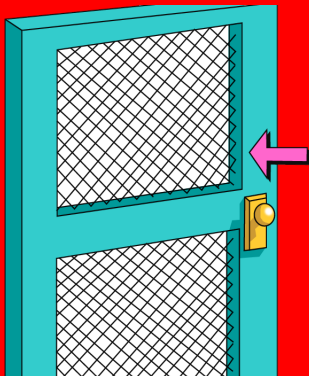

Tanner had no choice, but to hide in the art cabinet! Mrs. Applebottom noticed that something was missing off her desk. Suddenly, Tanner felt something slide down his back, "Oh no! Paint!" Tanner squealed. SPLASH! Paint flew everywhere. Mrs. Applebottom was scared, all she heard was, BOOM, SPLAT, SWOOSH! Tanner jumped out of the cabinet and ran home.

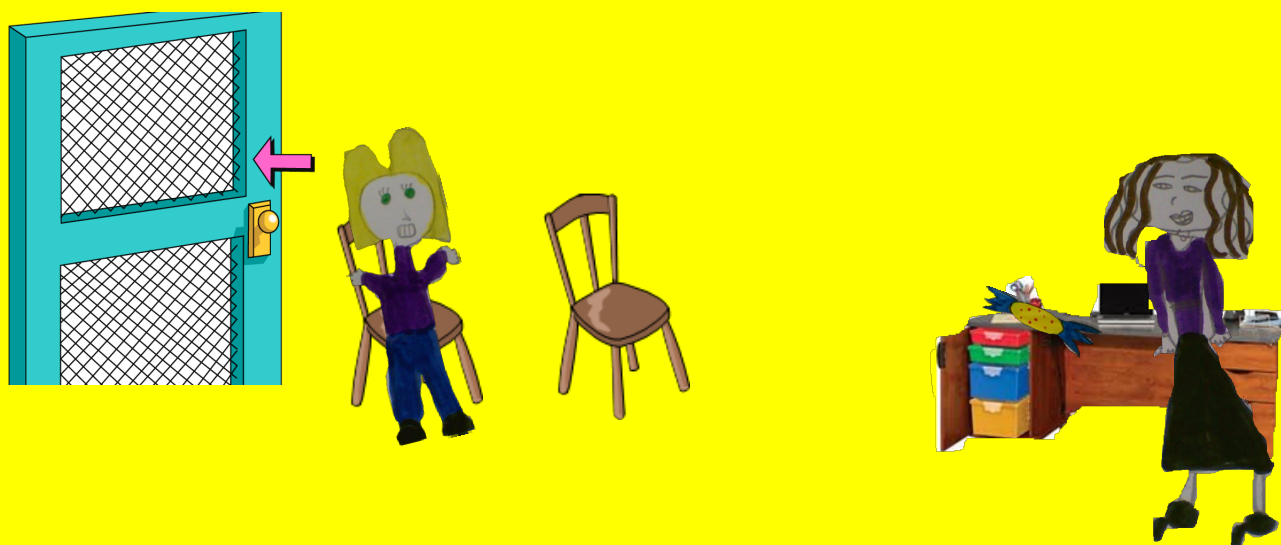

The next day Mrs. Applebottom sent Tanner down to the office. Mr. Craig asked Tanner "Why would you steal from your OWN Teacher?"

" Well I,I,I, don't know!" "I just really wanted candy but CARLA blurted out!

Mrs. Applebottom thought about Tanner, and why he would try to steal from her."Well I guess kids really do steal from teachers!" Mrs. Applebottom realized!:)

Abbygail enjoys writing, reading, and math. Abbygail's favourite sport is hockey. She has played it for two years. When Abbygail grows up, wants to be a teacher. She would like to give a special thanks to her grade five teacher for helping her with her idea by, doing the blurt system with Abbygail's grade five class. Abbygail would also like to give a special thanks to the district office for letting her publish a writing piece.

